Hospital Excel

Patient Management System - Excel Hospital

Development of a comprehensive hospital management system using Django as the main framework. The project included full-stack implementation with React.js, Django, Python, and Docker, along with the integration of pytest for automated testing, deployed on AWS. Additionally, SEO optimization and the creation of a modern website using Next.js with TypeScript, Framer Motion for animations, the Google Maps API, and Tailwind CSS for styling were undertaken. The user interface and user experience (UI/UX) design were developed in Figma, resulting in a visually appealing, functional, and scalable application.

G-Global industrial Almacén Tijuana

Software Engineer - Industrial G-Global

I participated in the development and maintenance of WMS and TMS systems, providing efficient solutions for project management and optimization. I developed full-stack applications using REST APIs, implementing CRUD operations and utilizing technologies such as React.js, Redux, HTML, SCSS, MongoDB, Node.js, Sails.js, Formik, yup, Postman, SQL, Docker, and testing. I was responsible for the maintenance and support of existing systems, resolving errors and addressing new user requirements. I implemented continuous improvement, code refactoring, and best programming practices to optimize processes and ensure a scalable, high-performance system.

I am a Full Stack web developer with seven years of experience in web and mobile development. I communicate and collaborate primarily through written language and tools such as Slack and Google Meet (using captions in video calls). I can clearly explain system design and user experience, as well as write professional emails.

I have experience building websites from scratch, creating dynamic and engaging interfaces for both browsers and mobile devices, using technologies like HTML, CSS, JavaScript, and more. I am deaf, but I communicate perfectly in writing. In remote work environments, written communication is the main form of collaboration: teams review code through Pull Requests and share feedback via text.
